October Town Council Meeting

By Patty Sieber

The Mayor and all Council Members all attended the October meeting. In addition, approximately six residents were in the audience. The main topic of the meeting was the amendment to the ordinance that will enable the Town to charge a fee to each household that connects to the gas lines that will be installed by Washington Gas. A number of other topics were discussed. They include:

Ordinance to Amend Articles 17 and 23

A number of residents attended the meeting to oppose the additional $300 Permit Fee that will be charged by the Town to each property that chooses to install gas in their home. This fee will be paid directly to the Town of Glen Echo and will help replenish the so-called surplus that was diminished by the recent payment to Washington Gas in the amount of $209,877. The check was sent to Washington Gas but has not been cashed as of October 14th. Since this ordinance was introduced last summer, there has been consideration of charging even more than the $300 fee first conceived by the Council.

The arguments for the fee were:
- Not all resident taxpayers will receive the benefit of gas.
- The Mayor stated that “residents who choose to install gas should have some “skin in the game.”

The Town surplus has dropped below the auditor’s recommended amount and the fee will help recoup some of that money. The main reason for the fee, however, is to defray the cost of the gas connection fee to under $200,000.

- The homeowners who install gas will recoup the fee in the increased value of the home at the time of resale.

Some the opposition’s arguments were:
- The permit fee paid to Washington Gas comes from the taxes already collected from all residents.
- As far as “skin in the game,” residents who choose gas are already investing heavily in the installation of gas to their home.
- The fee should not be used to replenish the surplus.
- The Town now has a surplus of more than $250,000 that can be considered a cushion to cover a year’s expenses, which are about $150,000 plus an additional $50,000 that could be thought of as savings toward additional emergency or capital expenditures.
- One resident had requested a listing of the revenue on hand each June since 2004. Currently the revenue on hand is $252,254 and the County will be sending another payment from collected property taxes in the near future.

Discussion ensued among the Council members and the Mayor. Mr. Stiglitz stated that he believed the fee should be levied and he was following his mission to be a good steward of Town resources. Nancy Long said that since Montgomery County charges a permit fee, the Town is justified in doing the same. The Mayor said that citizens had asked for the permit fee. Diana Hudson-Taylor, a member of the audience and resident who worked on collecting survey instruments from residents interested in gas said she thought the fee should be charged to those opting to hook up to gas.

There was a motion to adopt the amendment to Articles 17 and 23. After being duly seconded, the motion was passed unanimously. The permit fee will be $300. Article 23 is amended to allow the Town to contract without competitive bids for “contracts relating to providing natural gas service by Washington Gas to the Town of Glen Echo.”

Police Citations
Citations were on hold since the government shutdown and the Park closing.

Town Hall
The Town Hall was made available to classes that were cancelled by the Park during the government shutdown. Toddler Ballet, Blues Dance, and Yoga were all affected. Glen Echo was compensated for the use of the hall on the same basis that non-profits are charged. There was discussion of where additional parking could take place as it was affecting the residents who live near the Town Hall. There was also discussion about any interest the temporary users might have to continue to use Town Hall after the Park is opened again. Mr. McAffrey mentioned that there could be residential concern about the parking problems these groups present.

One resident asked if the data uncovered by the Town Clerk last summer had been used to make new policy about Town Hall use. The discussion came up in August but was postponed due to the late hour. The Mayor was interested in maximizing the amount of money the Town could raise by offering non-residents the hall for private events, and that might mean... constraints on some of the times the facility would be available to residents. The Mayor said there has been no further discussion since the August meeting.

Drain at Bowden and Oberlin
During the last rain, the drain backed up again and water overflowed on to the road. This could cause major havoc on the parkway with the continued erosion and potential for downed trees. This is the Park Service’s responsibility. This situation was reviewed two years ago and county engineers designed a fix and submitted the plans to the Park Service. It was discussed that Glen Echo should address a letter to the legal department or the Superintendent of the George Washington Memorial Parkway and attach a copy of the map of the drains and remind him of the potential danger. A council member was going to locate a copy of the map.

Nancy Long’s Birthday
Nicole Fraser and her children were kind enough to make a pumpkin treat for all to enjoy in honor of Nancy Long’s birthday.

Between 2009 and 2010, the total amount of the cash on hand dipped because of the Town’s investment in resurfacing the roads. Roads are resurfaced every eight years on average. Also that year the yearly revenue dipped because property assessments were lowered. To compensate, the Town raised the tax rate and the yearly revenue has been going back up.

To address concerns expressed at the Budget Hearing in May that investment in laying gas lines would lower the amount of the account balance (cash on hand), Mayor Beers noted that the Town never spends all the money that it budgets, so it is unlikely that the account balance would fall below $200,000. “It goes up about $60,000 every year,” she said. In the Notice of Budget Hearing, she said “past experience indicates that it is likely to be restored to its present level within a maximum of four years.”

Natural Gas Work Continues Behind Scenes

Town Clerk Nicole Fraser sent an email update to Town residents on the progress of Washington Gas in securing the required permit from the Army Corps of Engineers to install gas pipelines across MacArthur Blvd. Ms. Fraser reported the following information on October 17, 2013:

“…Washington Gas is still awaiting approval from the Army Corps of Engineers to run a gas main under MacArthur Blvd. The first proposal submitted by Washington Gas to the Army Corps of Engineers was rejected. Mr. Higgins of Washington Gas said that this is not unusual. Washington Gas has resubmitted with revisions and was given the approval by the Corps to conduct an underground survey with test wells. Some of you may have seen at the corner of Bannockburn Drive and MacArthur Blvd this week and last, an underground utility company AI Data (big black trucks). They were conducting the survey for Washington Gas to submit the data to the Corps…”

At the October Town Council meeting, the Mayor asked that the list of possible contractors to retrofit houses and systems for natural gas as published in The Echo last March be repeated. The Echo can be found on the Town website. Despite the many articles in The Echo about natural gas, it seems as if some residents feel uninformed. In this issue, along with the names of contractors, we have repeated information on web sites or publications that may shed some light on the price of gas versus the price of oil for heating.

Past Echo Articles on Gas

Some residents asked that The Echo write more about the natural gas issue. Many articles have been written and are listed below. Past issues of The Echo are on the Town website, www.GlenEcho.org.

Get More Information on Energy Cost Comparisons

The following links have been suggested by Town Clerk Nicole Fraser and there are many others. They may help you to calculate the savings available from converting to gas. Washington Gas also has a calculator on their site. Most importantly, be sure of the numbers you use. For instance, for gas, include all charges including delivery costs and get up to date prices on oil costs. Griffith Energy or Petro can tell you what you pay per gallon and what the cost will be if you lock in your price for next heating season. Either company can tell you what you paid for oil for certain time periods. Other variables will include the efficiency of furnaces or boilers. Some sites to visit:

- http://www.popularmechanics.com/home/improvement/energy-efficient/4331224
- http://extension.psu.edu/natural-resources/energy/energy-use/making-decisions/comparison-charts

Notes from Nicole:
The Penn State calculator lets one choose their energy source. So propane users could do a propane versus gas comparison.

Some of the other calculators had fixed inputs that were out of date and others were sponsored by the gas company and might have bias. If anyone else has found sites or calculators they like, please share with the list serve.

Matt Stiglitz suggests a realistic natural gas rate may be $1/therm that includes $.59 gas and $.41 delivery. If in doubt, call the gas supplier and make sure you include all charges.

A Successful Town Yard Sale

Once again, Town residents took advantage of coordination and group advertising supplied by Raya Bodnarchuk, Carol Barton, and Forest Yang for the townwide yard sale. Two residents reported that they made almost $400! Some may have earned even more but our roving reporter did not check in with everyone. There was a great turnout of residents and buyers alike. The Town is grateful to these volunteers who made the day pleasant and profitable for lots of people.
