Town Council Notes

Mayor Polak, the entire Council, Manager Nicole Ventura, and Town lawyer Ron Bolt, along with five residents were in attendance at the Town Council Meeting on February 11.

Vassar Circle Roadwork
The meeting opened with a detailed discussion about the pending roadwork on Vassar Circle. Work to widen the road around the circle is expected to start in mid-March and should be completed with a temporary topcoat by mid-May. A final topcoat will be installed in sections after construction of each home is complete. A bond for this roadwork will be posted with the County to protect against incomplete or improper work. Via Mr. Bolt, the Town asked the County to co-insure the roadwork if it disagrees with the County inspection of the completed work. After a lengthy exchange, the push for a second bond dissipated as the Council agreed to rely on Joe Toomey, the Town’s recently hired professional engineer, to review the roadwork as it occurs and inform the County of problems if they should arise. No specific decision was made, so it’s possible this issue is not closed.

Small Cell Towers
Last month, the Council introduced an ordinance requiring service providers to get a permit from the Town before installing small cell towers. The council proceeded to pass the ordinance unanimously. Additionally, the Council agreed to send letters of support to state and national level bills that allow municipalities such as Glen Echo to restrict small cell tower installation.

Town Communications
As noted in last month’s Echo, the Council continues to strive for improved communications with residents. Important issues are communicated via hand delivered flyers and an email blast. It is difficult to know which residents are or are not included in the email blast because addresses do not directly map to residents names. If you do not currently receive official Town email from townhall@glenecho.org, you may send a request to that address to be added to the Town’s email list. Note, the Town listserv, via Yahoo Groups, is not the official communication channel for the Town government. While many Town issues are discussed on the listserv, not all official Town messages are necessarily included.

Livable Town Committee
Julia Wilson, from the Livable Town Committee, attended to announce two upcoming events. A pre-Oscars family movie night was planned for the evening of February 23 in the Town Hall. The film, Incredibles 2, was nominated for an Oscar in the Best Animated Feature category. Looking further ahead to next month, we will celebrate the Town’s birthday with a Founders’ Day Game Day on April 14 from 2–5 PM. The party will be held in front of the Town Hall, and Harvard Avenue may be closed to traffic to enhance that block-party feel. Cornhole, Capture the Flag, and other games are on the agenda, and there are rumors of a birthday cake and some snacks being provided. We won’t name names, but the idea of a Council Member dressing up as one of the Baltzley brothers was discussed.

The Yale Sledding Hill
As many of you may have seen on the Town listserv, the status of the traditional Town sledding hill on Yale Avenue has recently been called into question. The Council was told by Mayor Polak that the new residents on Yale had asked that the street be plowed because an older parent, also living in the house, had difficulty getting to appointments. This brought up legal and insurance implications of purposely maintaining an unplowed street. The Mayor hopes to find a way forward that includes maintaining a plowed or shoveled path for 6001 Yale and possibly limiting the amount of time the street remains unplowed and sled-friendly. It seems likely that an agreement can be reached, because during the Echo’s interview with the new family on Yale (see page 5), it became clear that they are, in fact, in favor of keeping the sledding hill.

MacArthur Crosswalk
In November 2017, we reported that a pedestrian activated crosswalk light would be installed on MacArthur Boulevard at Princeton Avenue. Recently, Council Member Stiglitz checked in with the County, and they confirmed that the design was complete and hopefully installation will take place in the next couple months.

Town Business
Ms. Ventura provided several updates regarding Town management and budget details. Four bids are in for Town landscaping and right-of-way maintenance. The Council decided to award the contract to Hughes Landscaping, and the Town expects to save nearly $1,000 per month compared to the past contracts for the same services. Several budget details and adjustments were discussed based on recent changes, including increased hours for Ms. Ventura and costs associated with the newly retained professional engineering services. The Council also agreed to award a contract to Katchmark to install the new weathervane on top of the Town Hall, and they will guaranty the work for one year.

Town Expenses

In January, the Town paid $9,783 to Rolling Acres Landscaping (snow removal), $3,100 to Goode Companies (trash service), and $2,050 to Kencor, Inc. (elevator). –BILL VINCENT

Word on the street was that the new neighbors at the bottom of Yale put the kibosh on the traditional sledding hill, asking that it be plowed. The newcomers have turned to The Echo to clear their names.

Roshini Thinakaran and her family moved into their new home at 6001 Yale in November—just in time for the darkest days of the year and a lengthy stretch of rain and miserable weather. Roshini was surprised, when snow replaced the rain for a day in January, to discover that her new home was at the terminus of a very popular sledding hill. The normally quiet street was filled with the delighted shrieks of Glen Echo’s children.

After learning about this long and beloved Glen Echo tradition, she generously agreed to accommodate it. She has asked for a path to be shoveled to reach her car, which she’s happy to park on Columbia Avenue when snow is predicted. Neighbors have jumped to fill the request, so there is no reason the sledding hill can’t be back for any late season snowstorms!

Roshini works in real estate, mainly on the investor and lending side of the transaction. Prior to working in real estate, Roshini was a filmmaker. She has lived in Iraq, Lebanon, and Dubai, and has worked on film projects in Iraq, Liberia, and Afghanistan, as well as in parts of the United States. Her documentary projects focused on marginalized communities, including women living in war zones.

Roshini was born in Sri Lanka but has lived in the DMV area for more than 30 years. She moved to Glen Echo from Friendship Heights, looking for more space to share with her family. Her son Sammy is 15 months old, and her father also lives with the family. Her husband, Gilmar Paulino da Silva, spends part of the year in Brazil but will join the family in Glen Echo in the coming months. Roshini’s mother cares for Sammy during the day.

Like all of us, Roshini is eager for the arrival of spring and more time outdoors. Sammy will join the playgroup at Glen Echo Park, and they look forward to meeting neighbors, especially those with young kids. And when the snow returns next winter, they will be ready. “My husband and Sammy will be the first ones down the hill.” —ANGELA HIRSCH
People are surprised to learn that there are roses that can be grown successfully without spraying chemicals and don’t require intense care. I can confidently recommend five different roses that do well here and blend successfully with other garden plants. February or early March is the perfect time to plant roses because the roots will have plenty of time to grow before the stressful heat of summer. In late winter, roses are often planted as bare root plants. However, the usual containerized plants work as well. If given a choice, I suggest selecting roses that are grown on their own roots. If the plant has been grafted onto a different rose, the top of the plant dies back and will grow again from the base and it will still be the original rose.

Specific conditions are needed for roses to grow well. The best conditions include: a minimum of six hours of direct sunlight, a soil with good nutrition (plenty of compost added), no root competition from surrounding plants, and good air circulation to lessen the risk of leaf diseases.

In order to keep your rose bush blooming, you need to dead-head regularly. This simply means cutting off the fading flowers to encourage the rose to keep producing new flowers.

I am placing Rosa “Mrs. Dudley Cross” at the top of my list because she is almost thornless and this will alleviate the annoyance of being pricked as you putter in the garden. She has other attributes which include great repeat bloom, fragrant double flowers which open as a light yellow and darken to pink as they age, and new foliage that will be a beautiful red color. These plants will grow 4 to 6 feet tall and about the same width. This Tea rose was bred in 1907 in England and has truly stood the test of time.

Another fantastic rose that I have grown for years is Rosa “Heritage”—it is also called Rosa “Ausblush”. It is beloved for its lovely fragrance, long blooming period, and overall toughness.
These plants have gorgeous cupped, medium to soft pink flowers. The flowers smell like honey and citrus and will appear in flushes from spring through late autumn. Plants tend to get rather tall, around 6 to 8 feet, so allow them plenty of space in order to thrive.

I adore the rose called Marie Pavie and advise growing her in areas where you want a smaller plant. She is tough and versatile, and grows well in containers or as a low hedge. She has few thorns, blooms constantly, and has a divine scent. The flowers begin with stunning small pale pink buds that open into white flowers. Since plants only grow to a height of 3 feet, she will blend well in garden beds. The Marie Pavie rose dates back to 1888.

For climbing roses, I have had great success with Noisette roses. Because these plants have tall canes, they are often grown as climbers. Champney’s Pink Cluster, which originated in Charleston, South Carolina, in 1802, is a vigorous plant that grows clusters of pale pink double flowers with a sweet musky fragrance. The foliage is attractive, and the plant is almost thornless. I have seen it grow successfully up into trees, along fences, or on trellises.

And last, but by no means least, is the Yellow Lady Banks Rose. This beautiful climbing rose is often seen growing along fences and up walls in Georgetown. It is a thornless, vigorous plant with masses of miniature, double buttery yellow blooms. The primary effort with these plants is pruning off the wayward canes. Plants can climb 20 feet and provide one-time blooming in spring. These plants originated in China and made their way to England in 1824.

I was once the primary caretaker of an “Antique Rose Garden,” and I learned that every year is different in the world of rose care due to the weather and other environmental factors. Because of our excessive rainfall this year, we may see more disease. If you are going to plant a rose, the most important thing is to pick a great performer known for good disease resistance. It will give you plenty of enjoyment as well as gorgeous cut flowers on your table. — Holly Shimizu

In Your Backyard

Biridrs have no teeth for chewing, but many consume hard foods such as grains and seeds almost exclusively. So, what helps birds digest these tough morsels?

The answer is in a bird’s stomach—the lower part of its stomach, to be specific, in an area called the gizzard. Here the mixing and grinding of food that occurs in human mouths takes place. But instead of bicuspids, the gizzard uses “grit”—small rocks, shells, and sand—to break apart hard foods. The bird swallows the grit specifically to help with digestion. And when the grit wears down, the bird simply passes it as waste and consumes a fresh supply. Grit is easily accessible in the wild, so it’s not usually necessary to put it out at your feeding station. However, when snow covers the natural supply, you can add some. Use a ratio of about one-part coarse sand or ground clam or oyster shells to 25 parts or so of seed.

When the usual grit ingredients aren’t available, some birds will pick up things such as fruit pits as a substitute. Other, more remarkable objects have been recovered from bird gizzards, once nearly starting a gold rush! Birdlore has it that way back in 1911, small gold nuggets were found in ducks shot during hunting season. The largest piece was worth about 50¢, sending an entire Northern Virginia community out “prospecting.” — The Wild Bird Centers

Kick off Women’s History Month by going way back in time to Ancient Egypt at the National Geographic Museum downtown. The museum’s new exhibit commemorating the Queens of Egypt starts March 1. Artifacts from the lives of Nefertiti and Cleopatra will be on display alongside tombs from the Valley of the Queens. It runs through September 2.

Steep yourself in more arts by heading to the Freer Gallery of Art on March 2 to get transported by the Grammy Award winning Kronos Quartet. The group will be holding a master class after the show. While registration is full for the class, hopefuls can see if space is available by sticking around and joining on a first-come basis.

If you’re looking to find a new way to enjoy the spring flowers, then consider joining the adults-only botanical scavenger hunt on March 2 at the US Botanic Garden. This evening event is advertised as a “plant-based mystery” full of challenging trivia and refreshments to keep you going through all the different forensic stations.

Take note that this year opening day for the Washington Nationals arrives early on March 28. Come out and support your team in their season opener against the New York Mets. Go Nats!

No spring in the DMV would be complete without the Cherry Blossom Festival, this year running March 20 to April 13. Weather permitting, here’s hoping we have more blooms and less rain. While most of the springtime plethora of events are free to the public, a couple do require tickets. These include the Pink Tie Party on March 22 and the Festival Parade on April 13 (for grandstand seating) with proceeds of both going towards future support of running the festival.

For something more out of the box, join improvisational acting coach and teachers from local ArtStream for a free introduction to improv class on March 29. Held in the Greater Bethesda Chamber of Commerce, this early afternoon class will go over the basics of acting on your feet—skills that come in handy more often than you might think.

Glen Echo's Livable Town Committee—Julia Wilson, Dan Spealman, Angela and Aaron Hirsch, Martha Shannon, and Tim Bragan—have been busy. First, the group hosted another family movie night at Town Hall with Incredibles 2 on February 23. And next month, they are planning a full-on, Town-wide Game Day to celebrate our founding 115 years ago. Save the date for April 14 from 2–5 PM for cornhole, Capture the Flag, Town-themed Jeopardy, and various board games at the Town Hall. Some parts of Harvard and University Avenues may be closed off for the celebration. So, bring a dessert, and a Town flag if you happen to have one lying around, and come catch up with neighbors.

arvard Avenue resident Jan Shaut announced on the listserv that she is retiring from Case Design after 45 years. With more time on her hands, she will be taking over as supervisor of the Town’s Board of Elections from Susan Grigsby.

D
C’s Department of Transportation is considering a new three-mile pedestrian and bike trail along the Palisades Trolley Trail. This grassy stretch along the Potomac River was once home to the Glen Echo Trolley Line connecting the Park to Georgetown. It includes the Foundry Branch Trestle Bridge. The first public meeting on this will be March 7 from 6:30 to 8 PM at the Palisades Neighborhood Library.

M aking spring and summer camp plans? Don’t forget all of the many options right here in Town. For spring break, consider a fine arts camp, polish your acting skills at the award-winning Adventure Theatre, or explore animal architects in the woods! For summer, a broad array of options include arts, crafts, dance, performing arts, music, puppetry, animation, and photography. Check out the Glen Echo Park spring/summer classes and events catalog online or pick up a copy at the Park.

Planning a big event? Consider the special rental options at the Park which offers unique spaces for corporate events, weddings, and family gatherings. The open-air Bumper Car Pavilion has been recently upgraded with new curtain walls, fresh paint, and new lighting! The new softer LED lighting brings back the ambiance of an earlier era. You can learn more about this and other rental venues at the Glen Echo Park Rentals Open House on March 30.

Stay tuned here for more information on the ongoing planning for building renovations and improvements including the upcoming new roof and fire suppression system for the historic Dentzel Carousel and longer-term studies on the needs of the Spanish Ballroom, the Crystal Pool, and playground areas. We will be seeking Town input on our future planning as the process unfolds.—Martha Shannon
